

ABSTRACT

A printing system that includes a computer and a printer is described. A user can interact with the computer to submit a print job that describes a document to the printer. The user can also request that a message be automatically transmitted when certain conditions exist, the conditions may include the document meets at least one criterion and the printer encounters an event while processing the print job.

5